To our friends and community,

Spring is here and so is the opportunity to flourish this unique perfectly imperfect being that you already are!

Connecting to the heart is to live heart-centred, from the inside-out, being it the gateway into the infinite Universe of love that resides within you and that encompasses your being and everyone else's into Oneness.

Jeremy Lent expresses in his book The Web of Meaning that we tend to think that the worldview we hold is the real world, instead of realising that it is a lens that we have created that defines our way of thinking and the ideas we bear into specific "preconditioned patterns".

We all have been raised with beliefs and patterns that not necessarily belong to us, but that we have made ours. This perception of the world comes from the outside, it is not defined by who you truly are.

Existence goes beyond body and mind. Only through the heart-mind connection, and not the other way around, the mind becomes the tool for you to continue growing. The power of the heart, the power of love, is what guides everything in you, and outside of you, through you.

Love is an innate connection to the universe through a limitless feeling that pours outwards to the world from your heart to each cell of your body through who you are and what you do.

I have discovered the power of the heart through the experiences that life has gifted me with, that I have intentionally explored and experienced via PiMOV, and that we have practiced in togetherness to deepen the individual intuitive knowing and interconnectedness with others.

Everything is possible when living from the inside-out, through uniqueness and co-creation, an amazing opportunity to continue growing in the awareness of your limitless potential and Oneness.

Practice connecting to the heart to be the Socially-Conscious Leader that you already are!

With lots of love and gratitude,

Jeannette & your PiMOV Family

Dare to be who you are and to create what you love

The brain thinks.
But the HEART KNOWS.

— Dr. Joe Dispenza | Becoming Supernatural —

In these difficult times, we need more and more to be our own Leaders who through our uniqueness, in love, in respect, and in togetherness, co-create a Socially-Conscious world. [Click on image to read more]

Society needs you!

The more you open your perception, the more you love, value and respect yourself, everything and everyone else, and the more you know that you do not know anything.

"The only true wisdom is in knowing you know nothing" ~ Socrates

You are an endless bucket of lessons, growing and expanding in this infinite "Universe of Oneness". As per the HeartMath Institute, the heart plays a key aspect in the coherence between the mind and heart. This heart-mind connection is what we at PiMOV explore and experience when getting together: The mind exists to serve you, and not for you to serve it.

We willingly and consciously move into the heart to practice this state of being: Love. This love is what unites us. This love is what melts you and us into the infinite universe that is part of who you are and who we are. This love is what highlights your values, your perception, your being, and your connection to everyone and everything else.

You and us are in this together, because we are creating our lives and co-creating this world by living from the heart.

Connect, co-create and grow for a better future

Certainly, being a Socially-Conscious Leader is new for me, too. It's not that I thought for myself to be a Leader. But what I've learned through PiMOV is that everyone is a Socially-Conscious Leader when being in freedom to be who you are and to create what you love.

This is an article I wrote to inspire you to be the Socially-Conscious Leader that you already are, anywhere and at any time!
